

Using what we learned in class I want you to make a small stats game.

You will have a dice game that has Z players and each has a X number sided die. The person with the highest roll wins. You will need to be able to run Y number of games.

The statistics to be printed after:

How many wins each player had

The average of the winning number rolled